Preface

The present issue of the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections, the 23rd in the series, reports 1,636 collections held by 68 repositories, 25 of which are represented for the first time. Since its beginnings this catalog has published descriptions of approximately 56,435 collections located in 1,321 different repositories and has indexed them by approximately 621,500 references to topical subjects and personal, family, corporate, and geographical names.

The response of repositories to requests for descriptions of their collections has been gratifying. Continuing reporting by these cooperating institutions and expansion to secure the participation of others are essential for the success of the ongoing program.

Introduction

INDEX

This index for the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections covers catalog entries appearing in the 1985 issue and represents the first year of a new cumulation. The index provides in one alphabet references to names, places, and subjects, as well as form and genre terms reported in the catalog entries. Citations lead to the identification numbers that appear with each entry. Numbers preceded by a # mark represent main entries under which the descriptions appear or the names about which major portions of collections are formed. The index provides numerous cross references, many of which were derived from the Library of Congress Subject Headings or the Library's Name Authority database. All headings referred to in the cross references can be found in the 1985 volume. However, many of the headings from which "see also" references are made and some headings used as examples do not represent material in any volume of this catalog.

In addition to this volume, there are six cumulative indexes to which the researcher must refer in order to search all volumes of NUCMC. Those cumulations are 1959–62, 1963–66 (bound with the 1966 catalog), 1967–69 (bound with the 1969 catalog), 1970–74 (bound with the 1973–74 catalog), 1975–79, and 1980–84. For a more complete description of NUCMC's publishing history, see the foreword to the catalog volume.

Names

The index includes names of all persons, families, and corporate entities (i.e., associations, institutions, business firms, governmental agencies, etc.) associated with the manuscript collections described. The nature of their association varies from case to case. Some are authors, some subjects, and some addressees; others are involved more tangentially. Inspection of the entry for a collection will generally clarify these relationships.

The format for personal and corporate name entries in this index generally follows the style used in the Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules, 2nd edition (1978). All names have been checked against the Library's Name Authority database and, if a name is already in the database, its form is the one chosen for the index. In some cases the name authority has been changed to provide fuller information; in other instances cross references have been added. Similar personal names have been studied and the individuals identified as far as possible by the use of vital dates, place of residence, or occupation.

The index gives references from maiden names to married names and from variant names to the names chosen as index entries.

Descriptions that refer only to material about the estate of a deceased person are indicated under the person's name by the subdivision Estate; however if the collection also contains other material, the estate is not singled out. The same system applies to the indexing of genealogical material under the name of a family, but genealogists can locate genealogical material listed by family name under the direct entry GENEALOGY.

Family names are indexed by surname followed by the word family. The form of name used is that found in the collection. Except for very rare instances, no attempt has been made to provide cross references between variant forms of family names.

Cross references from keywords and earlier, later, and variant forms of corporate names are provided whenever possible. In addition, cross references from other corporate names are provided to show hierarchical or other kinds of relationships between corporate entities. The geographical or topical aspects of corporate bodies are represented in this index either by "see also" references from the appropriate topic or topical subdivisions under location or additional index entries representing the topic or place.

Places

Historical research in this country is so frequently concerned with study of the places where persons lived or where events occurred that geographic indexing of manuscript materials is necessary. From the first cumulation, an index entry has been made for each place name (city, village, or county) and another for the state in which it is located. Entries under local places are modified by the subjects or topics with which the respective manuscript collections or parts of them appear to deal. Many descriptions do not report specific subjects pertaining to places, and in such instances place names have been subdivided by such general terms as Family and personal papers and Resident of.

Every collection with material relating to a state or region has been indexed under the name of that political jurisdiction or area, whether or not it has also been indexed under a local place name. In the case of the cities of Boston, Chicago, New York, and Philadelphia, however, citations are made only under the city name. There will, of course, be a citation under topic divided by place, as explained in the next section. Thus, citations under PHILADELPHIA (PA.)—Postal service are not repeated under PENNSYLVANIA—Postal service but will appear under POSTAL SERVICE—Pennsylvania. Under PENNSYLVANIA—Postal service will be found references to postal service in all places in that state except Philadelphia.

In order to offer a more systematic approach to the study of a particular area, the names of most places have been subdivided by a classified arrangement of subject and topical terms which are not always the same as those chosen for direct subject entries. For example, a researcher interested in the public schools of Ohio will find an entry for PUBLIC SCHOOLS—Ohio, but under OHIO he or she will find the subheading Education, subdivided by specific aspects of education such as Universities and colleges, Public schools, and Technical schools. In some instances only a broad subheading is used under a place rather than a specific one, such as NEWARK (N.J.)—Societies, etc. rather than NEWARK (N.J.)—Learned institutions and societies. That same citation will also be found under LEARNED INSTITUTIONS AND SOCIETIES—New Jersey as explained above, and under the name of the organization when known.

Subjects

In order to provide access to the contents of collections with as much accuracy and completeness as possible, practices for assigning topical index entries have continuously evolved from the first volume of this catalog to the current one. This has resulted in the development of policies and terminology that are specific to this catalog. Beginning with 1985, in preparation for the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections becoming part of an automated national database, the decision was made to conform to the Library of Congress Subject Headings whenever possible. Therefore the majority of topical index entries used in this index are valid Library of Congress subject headings. The policies governing the assignment of subject index entries, however, are not always the same as those of the Library's Subject Cataloging Division. Differences in policy include those relating to place names and subdivisions under places (as described above), chronological and form subdivisions, and cross references.

Assigning Library of Congress subject headings while also providing the kind of access available to users of previous NUCMC indexes presents a difficult challenge. Many of the problems encountered have not yet been resolved, and the resulting index can be described as somewhat experimental. It is hoped that further improvements and refinements will be made.

The catalog and its index are an aid to research, not a ready reference guide. Accordingly, investigators should search for both specific and general terms: both are used in the descriptions and general terms are presumptive clues to specific material.

Form and Genre Terms

Although the forms of manuscripts have usually been listed in the scope and contents note describing the collection, they have been used only sparingly as access points in past indexes. Maps and sermons are examples of kinds of manuscripts that have always been listed in the general index. Sometimes the form of the material was combined with the subject and such headings as FARM ACCOUNTS and LABOR ACCOUNTS AND RECORDS were assigned. Form subdivisions such as Correspondence, Interviews, Newspaper clippings, Photographs, and Students' notes, have been used for amplification under topics or names of people. A special repository index for oral history transcripts and collections containing sound recordings was published from 1970 through 1984 because of the strong interest in locating this kind of material.

Beginning with the 1985 index, an attempt has been made to provide access to many forms and genres of manuscript material that researchers may need to find. Such terms are now included in the general index followed by the designation [f/g]. Oral history material and sound recordings, as well as a great variety of physical forms such as audio tapes, motion pictures, paintings, and video recordings and other forms and literary genres such as diaries, playbills, screenplays, and short stories are now listed in the general index. These are frequently clarified by the use of appropriate topical, geographical, or chronological subdivisions.

Some obvious forms of material such as correspondence or account books have not been used as index headings because the large number of citations under those terms would greatly increase the size of the index and be of limited use to researchers.

The new practices and policies regarding form and genre terms are also still experimental and it is expected that additional changes in these kinds of index entries will be made in the future.

Filing Arrangement

When the same word appears in the index as a personal name and as a place, family, or other name, the personal name precedes all of the others. Personal names are grouped together, followed by family names and then by all other index entries. Subdivisions of a given entry are alphabetized in two groups: (1) subject terms and (2) states and countries.

OCCUPATIONS

Following the general index is a list of the occupations, professions, or avocations of persons designated as main entries or mentioned prominently in the collections described in this volume.

This new index enables researchers to find the papers of persons engaged in particular professions or occupations as distinguished from collections about such professions or occupations. For example, the papers of an American author who lived in the nineteenth century contain materials that are substantially different from those in collections containing lectures or a dissertation on American authors in the nineteenth century.

The terms used are classified into broad subject areas, with specific occupations listed under each, followed by the MS number assigned to the collection description in which it appears.

The specificity of the terms chosen varies from field to field. When appropriate, some occupations have been subdivided by nationality, location, or time period, to provide greater specificity.

The occupations are all mentioned in the scope and content notes of the collections, but the subject of the papers may not always relate directly to these occupations or activities. Material about an occupation or activity is located by consulting the general index. For example, a collection containing an address on farmers would be assigned the index entry "Farmers" in the general index but not in the occupations index unless the papers were those of a farmer. It is necessary to consult both the general index and the occupations index in order to cover every aspect of a particular field or endeavor. For greater convenience, various cross references relating to the occupations index can be found in the general index. Users should note that the singular noun is used in the occupations index, where the emphasis is on the activity of an individual, but the plural form is used in the general index where the emphasis is on the profession as a whole.

WOMEN'S OCCUPATIONS

In response to the continuing interest in women's history and studies, a special listing of fields and specific occupations under the general heading "Women's Occupations" follows the occupations index. It should be noted that women are also included in the references listed in the occupation index itself, so that all citations to a specific occupation can be found in one place. The additional listing makes it possible for those interested in women's studies to find more easily those collections pertaining to women in a particular profession.

HOLDERS OF DUPLICATES

Following the occupations index is an index to holders of duplicates reported by other repositories. This index lists the names of repositories that hold reproductions of all or part of original manuscripts held in and reported by the repository holding the collection of originals. The identifying number of the catalog entry is cited for the full description. This index was begun in the 1963–64 issue and cumulated in 1966, 1969, 1973–74, 1979, and 1984.

HOLDERS OF ORIGINALS OF REPRODUCTIONS

Another special index, that of holders of originals of reproductions, lists by country, including the United States, the name of the repository holding the original manuscripts which have been listed in this catalog as photoreproductions. Reference is made to the entry number. Reproductions qualify for inclusion in the catalog when they are created from original manuscripts scattered in several repositories or from several collections in a repository or when the repositories holding the originals either do not regularly admit researchers or are not located in the United States. This index was also begun in the 1963–64 issue and appears in all the later cumulations.
